

04/25/2011

TO: Whom It May Concern,

Dear Sir,

Mr. has asked me to write a letter on his behalf. He has been diagnosed with hepatitis C virus infection and is undergoing testing at VAH and with my office. He mostly likely acquired hepatitis C from a herd inoculations using air gun and needles as part of his military service from may 1971 to May 1974. He does not have any other risk factors, as he has no tattoos, no prior history of any blood transfusions or history of IV drug use and his spouse has been tested negative for hepatitis C virus. Therefore, it is my opinion that he most likely acquired his hepatitis C infection from the mass inoculation process.

Note electronically signed by: , M.D.