

4. Evaluation of diabetes mellitus type II currently with erectile dysfunction evaluated as 20 percent disabling.

The evaluation of diabetes mellitus type II with erectile dysfunction is continued as 20 percent disabling. {38 CFR 3.321(a); 38 CFR 3.321(b)(1)}

An evaluation of 20 percent is assigned from August 30, 2008. An evaluation of 20 percent is assigned if there is a requirement for insulin and restricted diet, or oral hypoglycemic agent and restricted diet. A higher evaluation of 40 percent is not warranted unless insulin, restricted diet, and regulation of activities are required.

We have assigned a noncompensable evaluation for your erectile dysfunction because there is no evidence of deformity. However, it must be added to the diabetes evaluation because it is not compensable.
